Schools and universities across the country rely on printed materials to promote safety, boost school spirit, support fundraising, and streamline communications. Custom printed products—like corrugated signs, roll labels, parking permits, and fundraising loyalty cards—offer practical solutions for every department, from administration to athletics. Seasonal events, student recognition, and program funding all create ongoing opportunities. When school budgets fall short, consider asking local businesses to contribute sponsorships in exchange for advertising space to help schools meet their printing and funding goals.
